

What is Financial Leakage?

Leakage is dollars and efficiencies lost as the result of system limitations, process control gaps, and/or human error. It starts as a drop, seemingly innocent; however, it can quickly become a growing drag on your organization and resources.

Leakage is a problem that affects all organizations and it drains time, opportunity, and working capital.

We help you capture, minimize, and cage the leakage monster. Which allows you to focus on organizational goals and objectives, while also developing a Path to Prevention.

Understanding Financial Leakage

Take-Away

- Lost opportunity may be the most expensive casualty of leakage because it affects future revenue.
- Time and working capital losses are more prevalent.
- SpendMend is the only company that can help solve this issue.